Editor Standard: I notice in the morning Standard of August 29, two editorials which appeal to me as being something new in the editorial field of Ogden; namely "Why not advertise?" and "Coltman and Idaho Falls."

The first editorial furnishes a basis on which a considerable can be written, and I will touch on a few points. Ogden needs advertising more than any other place in the United States, a few references are sufficient to prove this assertion; the fruit interests of Ogden and adjacent country If located elsewhere would be sufficient to build a city of considerable size as proven from the fact that Grand Junction not having as much land adjacent thereto or as desireable climate has by persistent advertising built up a small city, and has increased the price of land to from one thousand to two thousand dollars per acre, much better land with good water right, better climatic conditions, better railroad facilities, near Ogden can be purchased at Twenty-five per cent of the price asked and received in Grand Junction. good business point had less mineral to make her greater than Ogden. It is true that two men in Ogden have for a number of years worked persistently at mining, but outside of these two men, nothing has been done in a systematic way to de-velop or to advertise Ogden's great mineral resources. These two men as soon as they can realize on their labor will be multi-millionaires, one of them having recently sold a small part of his holdings for a quarter of a million dollars. Leadville became great by advertising and a city as large as Leadville can be built in Ogden from its mineral resources alone when recently advertised and development.

There are many other resources

Southwest, Ogden has a larger and more resourceful territory adjacent to it than Kansas City, and from this source alone it should build a city of several hundred thousand population; Kansas City grew because it advertised, and if Ogden will advertise persistently, it may be as large a city as Kansas City, because the adjacent country to Ogden is being developed yery rapidly, and all we have jacent country to Ogden is being de-veloped very rapidly, and all we have to do is to reach out and secure the increase of population and wealth

Recently when the representatives of the "Omaha Bee" were in Ogden and desired me to suscribe to advertising in the "Omaha Bee", I told them that I believed in advertising, and I be-lleved Ogden needed advertising more than any other city in America owing to its great resources, but that I would not advertise in the "Omaha Bee' unless it was done systematically and on a large scale large enough to warrant some results, and if they would raise five thousand dol-lars for advertising Ogden, I would pay one hundred dollars of that sum, the amount was raised and five thou-sand dollars is now being spent advertising Ogden and its resources in the "Omaha Bee". For many years past no systematic, persistent, continuous effort has been made to advertise Ogdon. Much money has frittered away in issuing booklets and other fragmentary advertising, most of which is at present lying around in back offices, never baving been sent out after having been issued. What we need more than any one thing as suggested by the editorial above referred to, is advertising in a systematic, scientific and comprehensive manner, and in order to accomplish this result, I am willing to subscribe one thousand dollars with twenty-four other men or firms, to create a fund of twenty-five thousand dollars to be used in sys-tematically advertising Ogden and its resources, and I am persuaded that if this sum be judiciously expended in advertising Ogden and its resour-ces, we will then be able, willing and ready to subscribe one hundred thou-sand dollars to continue the campaign of advertising already begun.

I am willing at any time to assist in organizing an advertising cam-paign looking to the execution of the above propositions

J. J. BRUMMITT.

According to Cashier R. A. Moyes of the Commercial National Bank who has just returned from an extended vacation trip to his brother-in-law's sheep ranch in Cottonwood canyon, south of Uintah, the farmers and ranch men of that section are making wonderful strides in progressive farming. He declares that some of the more enterprising ones are driving pipe into the foothills south of Weber canyon, and utilizing the water to generate electric power with which they are practically operating their farms and ranches, and intend in time to install heavy dynamos that will even do such small chores as cooking, churning, etc.

Already, the heavy work, such cleaning grain, grinding corn, light ing, heating, running cream separa tors, fanning mills, etc is being done by the electricity brought to their service by their enterprise, and owing to the inexpensive manner in which the motor-force is obtained, there will be no limit to the tasks surrendered to the dynamos.

Mr. Moyes reports a splendid trip, having spent three weeks of his trip

On account of the lack of a quo-rum, the city council adjourned its meeting from last evening until to from this comprehensive territory by persistent and continued advertising.

The second citionial "Column and Idaho Falls" shows what one man can do by persistent, continuous and everlasting pushing and advertising.

FREDDIE LAHEY.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Lahey, formerly of Ogden, will be grieved to learn of the death of their beloved son Freddle, which occurred in Spokane after an unsuc-cessful operation for appendicitis. Mr. J. D. Lahey will be well remember-ed in Ogden, as for many years he was in the employ of the Southern Pacific Railroad company as conductor, running out of Ogden. Mrs. La-hey is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Austin and sister of Councilman J. W. Austin. The news of the young man's death came as a shocking sur-prise to part of the family who reside in Ogden, Mrs. Austin left last evening for Spokane to attend the funeral, which will take place Tuesday

Blackened walls, twisted girders and heaps of smouldering embers are all that remain of Salt Lake City's Salt Palace, famous for advertising the great natural resource of Utah, of which it was built. The fire of mysterious origin, which entailed a loss of $50,000, burst from the in-terior of the "Third Degree," an elec-trical concession at 2:20 o'clock yes-terday morning in a fountain of flame. With the wind blowing a gale, the flames were carried over the soda water stand and set fire to the roof water stand and set fire to the roof of the Salt Palace, the main building of the resort, in a dozen places. From these little torches, the fire e into the roof and soon enveloped the large dome, the wind fanning the flames and carrying them briskly over

When the alarm was turned into headquarters, the "Third Degree" was burning fiercely. The fire depart ment got the first report second-handed from the police department, and it was five minutes later before a direct alarm came in. As soon as the water was turned on to the building the firemen found that they had the wind to fight, which fed the fire and lashed the shooting flames into a fury. The wind broke the force of the four streams of mater which were soon playing on the building and the fire department was unable to cope with the situation.

"I began to have an itching over my whole body about seven years ago and this settled in my limb, from the knee to the toes. I went to see a great many physicians, a matter which cost me a fortune, and after I noticed that I did not get any relief that way, I went for three years to the hospital. But they were unable to help me there. I used all the medicines that I could see but became worse and worse. I had an inflammation which made me almost crazy with pain. When I showed my foot to my friends they would get really frightened. I did not know what to do. I was so sick and had become so nervous that I positively lost all hope.
